

Long Term Live Forecast - Review -

Cycles / www.whentotrade.com

Lars von Thienen

Background & Summary

- I post different long-, mid- and short-term high-probability forecasts in the private cycles forum for the owners of the book.
- I did made a long-term market statement on April 2011 in the private forum, despite the bullish sentiment, to get out of stocks and to load up on shorts. The S&P was trading at 1330 at time of the warning issued.
- The market high came in only 4 weeks later.
- The S&P is now trading at 1130 – a profit from the signal of 200 points or over +15% profit just three month after the warning.

I just wanted to post a follow up info on my long term perspective. If I do not post a lot of charts - nothing has changed.. so it is in this case.

If you have followed my cycles perspective from end of last year - you will know that I was expecting the major top in the end of 2010/beginning of 2011. Up to now - nothing has changed from this perspective - we are still here at the top...;-) Backwards from now to end of year - we moved around 4 percent in the "other" wrong direction (from 1290 to 1340 on the SPX). Some people have been nervous about this move --- not me. Hey, if you get nervous if your trade moves 5% against you, you have no confidence in what you are doing - with cycles, you will never get the exact top/bottom... however in the end, this doesnt matter ;-). I have a lot of confidence in my own stuff.... so I am sitting here and just can repeat... get out of your longs, position yourself to go short (trade price not forecast) or - if already - load up your shorts....

The review.....

Warning posted April 2011 (long-term): "We are sitting at the top! Get out of you longs! Load up your shorts!"

Review of the call: The exact high just came in 20 days later! (exact by +/- 1 bar using a monthly chart for this long-term view!)

..... nearly every one was bullish during the time in april - not if you have followed the cycles. We can book big profits now as the other people just recognize that the market has dropped....

Cycles

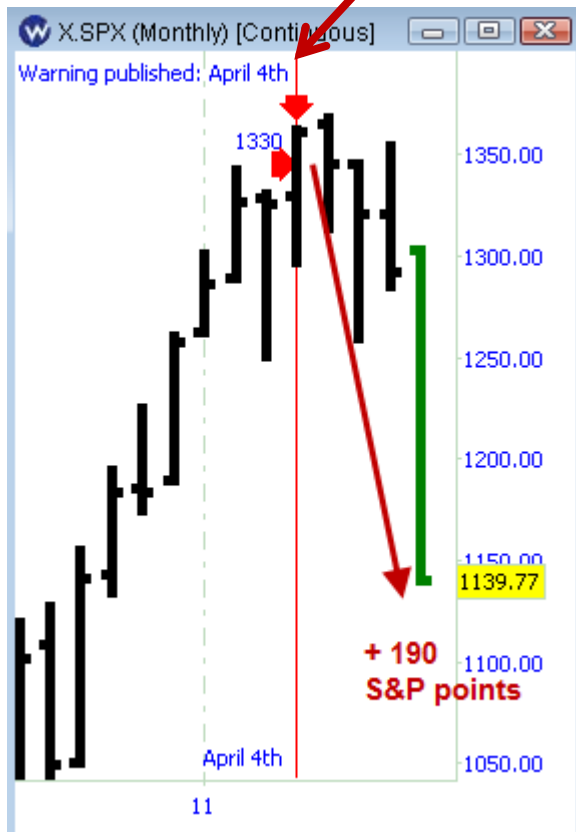

and the rest is surprised....
