The next chart shows the updated chart for today. Interesting to see that the dominant cycle is still active (117) and we had only minimal phase shifting that did not affect to forecasted turning points during last year. The HIGH / LOW marks have not been moved since the end of 2009. Only the dynamic cycle explorer was updated (cycle plot).

This shows us where we are in this cycle today....

This shows us where we are in this cycle today...

There is more to tell about this. I will try my best to post additional charts with other observations if times allows.
